

Performance Testing

- Software system should meet its performance requirements - by analytical estimation or by observation
- Performance tests carried out on a prototype will be misleading
- Responsiveness depends on design decisions - which are made in early stages of the software process
- Hence very expensive to change if responsiveness is inadequate during testing of implementation