

How to Develop Rapid Prototype?

Application software system usually consists of:

- Graphical User Interface
- Database subsystem
- Telecommunication subsystem
- Application-specific functions

To develop a rapid prototype, concentrate on the graphical user interface, so that the user can experience the look and feel (and even try some of the functions) of the final product.