

The Software Process and Its Problems

Client, Developer and User

Client is the person or organization who orders the product.

Developer is the person or organization who develops the product.

User is the person or organization who uses the product.